

Lori Thomas | Clinical Quality Manager

Lori Thomas joined CHAD in October 2017 as Clinical Quality Manager. She brings with her a strong background in both bedside nursing and clinic management. She was an obstetrics nurse for five years, and for the last year, served as a clinic nurse manager for a community health center in Nebraska, where she developed a strong passion for working in community health centers.

Lori's role at CHAD is to facilitate and manage clinically-related networks, and support quality improvement and clinical measurement activities with assessment, evaluation and feedback. She serves as a resource and provides training and technical assistance to all health center staff on clinical quality issues and services.

Lori received her bachelor's degree in nursing from Nebraska Methodist College. She then received her master's degree in nursing, with an emphasis in the chief nurse executive role, also from Nebraska Methodist College.

Lori recently moved from Omaha, Nebraska and currently resides in Sioux Falls, South Dakota.
